Dear Subscriber:

As I begin my fifth year of publishing the bulletin I am putting out a request for the subscribers' input. In calculating the average land values reported in the bulletin since taking over from Jane Arthur I have always used the farmland price parameters she was previously using and suggested. Price parameters are the high and low values used to screen out farmland sales outside the reasonable range farmland for a given soil class is selling at, providing more reflective averages. Since February 2000, my first issue, Illinois land values have risen substantially and I believe it is becoming necessary to modify the price parameter for each soil class to more accurately reflect average values.

I am looking for your thoughts with how to adjust these price parameters. The current parameters currently being used for each soil class are as follows: A/AB, greater than $2,300 and less than $5,000; B/BA/BC, greater than $1,850 and less than $4,500; C/CB/CD, greater than $1,000 and less than $3,500; D/DC/DB/DA, greater than $750 and less than $3,500. Please email me at evan@ilsb.us or call me at 608-543-3125 with your thoughts and suggestions.

Don't forget the ILSB can be received electronically. Call for details.

Inflation Adjusted Value of Farmland Equal to the Early 1970's
 According to Mike Duffy, Iowa State University ag economist, the average value of Iowa farmland hit $2,275/acre, topping the previous record of $2,147 reported in 1981. This survey has been conducted since 1941. The interesting part of the story is that according to Duffy, adjusted for the effect of inflation, the 2003 figure is equal to the value of land in the early 1970's. Does this mean land values are headed higher from the current record levels? Time will tell. Source: The Corn & Soybean Digest, February 2004.

Green Space Agrees with Voters

According to a November 7, 2003 article by Jim Carlton in the Wall Street Journal, Americans are electing to levy sales taxes or borrow via municipal bonds to keep tracts of open land around cities from being paved over with subdivisions, office buildings or etc. Voters in 16 states passed 64 of 77 (83%) local and state measures to raise about $1.2 billion to protect lands for parks and open space. In all voters have committed to raise $22.9 billion (yes billion) for open space protection through 643 state and local measures since 1999.

Locally, per a 10-31-2003 article in the Illinois Agri-news, on October 27, 2003 Kane County finalized the purchase of conservation easements on 690 acres valued at $1.4 million. These easements will prevent this land from ever being developed. This is in addition to 750 acres of easements purchased during 2002 which was valued at $1.3 million. I noticed some of these easements reported in this bulletin. Funding was from the Natural Resource and Conservation Service in conjunction with Kane County

Brock's Opinion on Land Values

Richard Brock's Profits column in the February 2004 issue of Corn & Soybean Digest comments that he believes the farmland market will stay strong looking to 2004. Increases comparable to those of this past year are not likely, but a downward price move similar to the early 1980's is out of the question. In order to have a sharp decline in asset values you must have forced liquidation sales. Debt levels, along with interest rates are much too low for such a situation to occur. The worst that could happen is that farmland prices will go flat.

Hog Farms Hurt Property Values

Iowa State University found that property values dropped by up to 11% within ¼ mile of a hog operation, 8% within ½ mile and 3% within 1 mile away. This study by the Center for Agricultural and Rural Development looked at five north-central Iowa counties from 1992 to 2002 and included 550 livestock operations, 95% of which were hog units. To all you hog farmers please remember don't kill the messenger; I am just reporting the information. Source: November 2003 Progressive Farmer.

Explanations and Abbreviations about the ILSB

Soil Classifications

For the purposes of the bulletin the soil class or classes identified is a ranking of the “prime agricultural land” in Illinois based upon Circular 1156 entitled “Soil Productivity in Illinois” and its supplement published by the University of Illinois, College of Agriculture and the Cooperative Extension Service. This publication assigns a productivity index for all the soils throughout the state based upon the soil’s ability for grain production.

If the soil’s productivity index is within the “prime” range it is divided into three categories as follows: “A” being excellent, “B” being very good and “C” being good. Given the rising demand for “non-prime” acreage, i.e. woods, pasture, etc., I have taken the liberty to assign the letter “D” for those soils with soil productivity indexes below the prime category.

The procedure used to determine the soil classification for each sale by the ILSB is to first locate the sale in the plat book and then to locate it in the corresponding soil book (where available). Then an “eyeball” estimate is made of the soil types and the corresponding prime (or in some instances non-prime) farmland categorization, i.e. “A”, “B”, “C” or “D”. The two largest categories of prime farmland are then assigned to that sale.

For example, if the soil types on a particular farm is 70% Flanagan and 30% Drummer the prime soil classification is “A”. If the soil types are 30% Drummer, 30% Flanagan and 40% Milford, the classification is AB (60% of the farm is “A” while 40% is “B”). The 1st letter is the most prevalent soil class followed by the 2nd most prevalent class. Thus if a sale was 60% Milford, 20% Drummer and 20% Flanagan, the rating is BA. It gets tricky with numerous soil types containing three or four different prime categories. REMEMBER, the ILSB soil classification is only an ESTIMATE.
